

Partner Tag

In Africa, the children are very creative and make up many of their own games to play.

Partner tag is best played outdoors in an open field. Ask the children to spread around the field in pairs, with their arms hooked.

There is an “it” and another player without a partner who is the one currently being chased. The one being chased can hook onto one of the pairs scattered on the field, in which case the second person in that pair becomes the new person being chased.

When a tagging occurs, the roles simply reverse. No immediate tag-backs allowed.
